SHOT BY WOMAN, MAN DIES

Accused Declares Sebastiano Crapino Compelled Her to Leave Husband, Self-Defense Claim

Sebastiano Crapino, twenty-two years old, of 337 Kimball street, died today in the Cooper Hospital, Camden, from revolver wounds inflicted last Wednesday by Mrs. Josephine Moresca...

Mrs. Moresca, who is in the Camden County Jail awaiting trial, told the police that Crapino fell desperately in love with her and compelled her to leave her husband and come to Philadelphia with him...

"GOING AFTER" AUTOIST

Father of Actress Hurt in Accident Will Seek to Determine Responsibility

Isaac Carpenter, father of Helen Carpenter, the young Philadelphia actress who was seriously injured yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding was struck by an express near Niagara Falls...

The elder Carpenter left his home, at 1500 Locust street, yesterday afternoon, to go to the office of the Philadelphia Police Department...

"I have often warned my child to stay away from automobiles driven by strange fellows," he said, "but I believe that the car was taking her from the theater to the hotel. Still, I cannot understand how she happened to be crossing the railroad some distance from the theater."

Indirectly Carpenter issued a warning to girls leaving home for the lure of travel and "bright lights." "I permitted Helen to leave home only after the manager of the show had promised me to walk with her every night from the theater to the hotel."

Reports indicated the manager had broken his promise.

Police Court Chronicle

Pete Palmer likes pumpkin pies and pumpkin pie like Pete Palmer. Preserving sets purloined pumpkin pies persistently, he admits. But he was always actuated by hunger, it appears.

Palmer has been knocking about West Philadelphia for a number of years doing odd jobs. He found whitewash a collar as well as he could open oysters, and if it came to a pinch he could act as a professional call-bearer at a funeral if he weren't busy carrying baskets in the market.

But no matter how hard he worked, Pete usually found nothing but liabilities and a tired feeling on Saturday night. Pete admits that this condition was largely due to a tedious thirst, which could not be detested.

Pete felt tired and hungry as he saw an ambitious-looking pumpkin pie resting comfortably on the counter of a bakery near Third street and Market street. He walked in quickly, embraced the pie noiselessly and left. But he had barely disturbed the perfect contour when a woman customer, who was entering, became suspicious. She shouldered for the proprietor, and he caught Pete about a block from the scene of the crime.

Pete had already accomplished his chief purpose. He ate as he ran, and being an expert in this kind of dining, there was nothing left but crust when the owner of the pie halted him.

The woman told Magistrate Harris that he shouldn't resist pumpkin pies at any time. She convinced the Judge that he was not deterred by the thought of commercial gain.

He figured out that the pie was worth 20 cents, so on promising to return to the owner of the bakery and punish a pile of crust, Pete was given another chance to improve his future.

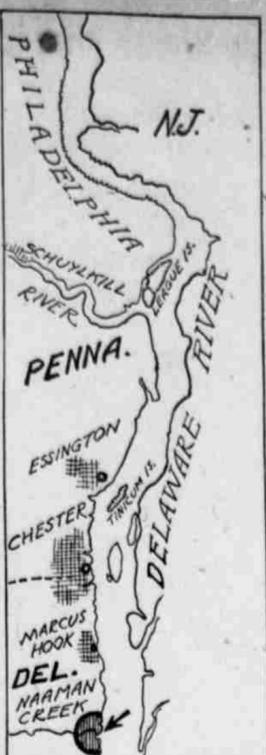

Judge Defends Edge's Record—ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 28.—Judge John J. White, of the Court of Errors and Appeals, in an open letter today urged opponents of Edge's gubernatorial candidacy to refrain from making a charge of "vicious" reply to attacks upon the Senator contained in a letter issued recently by Progressive Moore, charging that the Senator was tampering with Keating's machine.

White said that the Senator was cleaning up the machine. Judge White replied that the Senator had really settled matters in the matter of all his business in the State.

MURDERED GIRL'S HAT FOUND ON RIVER BANK

Man Who Told Police He Took Fur From It Held Under Surveillance

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 28.—On the allegation that he took the milk fur from the hat Ida May Brown wore on the day she was murdered and gave it to an Exeter borough woman, George Williams, of West Pittston, was taken before District Attorney Slattery today to tell what he knows of the case.

Williams reported to Chief of Police McDonald last Sunday that he saw Miss Brown's hat pinned to the canvas in a motorboat on the afternoon of October 18, a few hours before the girl's body was found in the river near the boat. He said that he was fishing nearby, but the man Williams named as his companion says he was not there.

In company with Chief McDonald, Williams searched the river bank for the hat and found it. Yesterday afternoon, Chief of Police Newcomb, of Pittston, learned from Mrs. Joseph Rogosky, of Slocums Patch, that Williams had given her a milk fur, which proved to be that taken from the Brown girl's hat.

Several other points in the man's story did not fit and because the law cannot be invoked to enforce a bet, John Kastavidge, of Westville, Ill., retains possession of his good right eye, no matter which way the November election goes.

REROUTING SUBWAY CARS

Temporary Change at Night to Facilitate Work at City Hall

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is making arrangements to run the subway-surface cars on Market and Chestnut streets instead of in the tube for a few hours each night in the near future in order to facilitate the work on the new City Hall station of the Broad street subway.

The arrangements for the rerouting of the subway-surface cars are being worked out by the company and the Keystone State Construction Company which holds the contract for the work under City Hall. Just when the change will be made and how long the rerouting will have to be continued have not yet been determined.

Runaway Horses Kill Man

Charles R. Reed, fifty-five years old, a farmer and butcher, of Marple, Pa., was killed last evening in a runaway accident. He was on his way home when the horses attached to his wagon became frightened on the Springfield road, north of Clifton Heights, and ran away. Reed was dragged for nearly 100 feet after he fell from the wagon.

One of the horses evidently kicked him on the head, causing a fractured skull. Money and his gold watch were found strewn along the road. The body was found by Captain of Police Honan and Commissioner Fred Hoopes, of Upper Darby township, who were driving along in an automobile.

LAWYER WHOSE RIDE SAVED BOY CAPTURES HOUSE OF DETENTION

David R. Griffith Could Get Any Office From Inmates for Bold Act in Behalf of Accused Lad

DAVID R. GRIFFITH, JR.

At the House of Detention, Twenty-second and Arch streets, David R. Griffith, Jr., attorney at law, 117 North Broad street, Building, today could win any sort of a nomination, if the occupants of that place possessed nominating powers.

Though reading newspapers is one of the "forbidden fruits" to the young burglars, professional "hooker players," runaways, and children shoplifters, Griffith's unique exploit in saving Charles McAnney, thirteen years old, of South street near Twenty-fourth, another reformer, by riding on a horse, with a fish in one hand and a chicken in another, was discussed in the playroom today more than anything else.

BOY PLEADED GUILTY

The McAnney boy, with two other youngsters, yesterday pleaded guilty to stealing a horse, some chickens, and a basket of fish when arraigned before Judge MacNelle, Mr. Griffith, interceding for the McAnney boy, said stealing horses by a boy was joy riding, another reformer, MacNelle asked Mr. Griffith whether he went joy riding on a horse with a fish in one hand and a chicken in another.

RISE SAVED BOY

"My ride on a horse with the fish and chicken in my hands," said Mr. Griffith today, "saved Charles McAnney from a reformatory sentence—it meant that he got another start in life. If I had represented twenty boys instead of one yesterday, I would have been willing to mount a horse twenty different times to save them from a term in some reformatory."

Yesterday's incident may appear to be a joke in the eyes of some folks. Let it be a joke and let people ridicule me—but I am glad that I mounted that black mare, because if I hadn't made that proposition to Judge MacNelle, Charley today may have been on his way to a reformatory. There he might have met boys who have been convicted of more serious offenses. It is usually the first term in an institution which gives the boy a chance to find out something of the underworld.

"On my way to the office today I met several youngsters who live in the Twentieth Ward, where I live. Several of them have been in the House of Detention. They were all glad to hear that my little client had been given another chance. While mounted on the horse and riding down Chestnut street, I never had my mind on the crowd or some of the women and men seated in cars who were poking fun at me from the windows. My mind was constantly on Charley—though I couldn't see Charley because he was hidden in the crowd in custody of a probation officer."

PENNSYLVANIA BOYS WIN PRIZES AS FARMING JUDGES

Sweep the Field at National Dairy Show, Springfield, Mass.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 28.—Pennsylvania's teams of boys judges of cattle, butter and poultry swept the field at the National Dairy Show at Springfield, Mass. They captured first prizes in every contest they entered, took all four sweeps in the farm butter exhibit and won the sweepstakes in poultry judging.

Their rewards included a Holstein bull calf, valued at $1000, which was won by Merrill P. Tait, of Mercer County. Tait took first prize in a field of ninety-seven contestants in the dairy cattle judging contest. He scored 505 points out of a possible 600. Tait also won the sweepstakes prize for the highest individual score in that event.

The poultry judging team—Henry Bodie, Ralph Bodie and Edwin Schearer, all of Berks County—captured a $50 prize for the best team work. Henry Bodie won the sweepstakes award for the best score in the individual poultry judging contest, and Schearer took the second prize. Schearer also was awarded second prize on a pen of White Wyandotte pullets. Ralph Bodie was given third prize on a pen of White Leghorn pullets.

CAMDEN EDUCATOR DIES

Prof. John Brown Organized Manual Training in High School

John Brown, organizer and head of the manual training department of the Camden High School since its inception a quarter of a century ago, died suddenly this morning at his home, 427 Madison street. The death of the aged professor, who was in his sixty-ninth year, was ascribed to heart disease.

Mr. Brown was born in Belfast, Ireland, while his parents were traveling. He had been a resident of Camden for forty-five years and was a member of Ionic Lodge, F. and A. M., and also a member of the Improved Order of Red Men St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church and several societies. He is survived by two sons, Joseph C. Brown and John Brown, Jr., his wife having died six years ago. No funeral arrangements have as yet been made.

TO AID GIRL WORKERS' HOTEL

New York Club Women Plan More Work for Institution

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Special attention is to be given in the next year by club-women of this city to the hotel for working girls maintained by them at 462 West Twenty-second street.

Mrs. Emilie Glogau, president of the corporation, made a plea for the hotel's support at the forty-first convention of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Eugene J. Grant, president of the federation, is to call a president's meeting soon at which definite help may be pledged.

This hotel, called the City Club, is designed to accommodate girls who are making $7 a week and less, and board and room is provided for them from $3.50 to $4.50 a week.

CHIROPRACTOR RAPS APPENDICITIS "FAD"

Accuses Surgeons of "Encouraging Operation to 'Keep Pot Boiling'"

"Appendicitis has become a fad and surgeons have taken it up for the sake of keeping the pot boiling," declared Dr. W. H. Butler, of McKeesport, Pa., in an address before the 100 members of the Chiropractors' Association of Pennsylvania, attending the sixth annual assembly of the organization in the Hotel Adelphia today.

Dr. Butler was reading a paper on appendicitis. "Statistics of the surgeons show a great number of cures affected by the use of the knife, but they never tell us the number of deaths that result," said the speaker. "The cure of appendicitis by chiropractic is a common thing. Patients who are treated by chiropractors will at least have their appendicitis and their pocketbooks will not be emptied. It is our theory that appendicitis is caused by a nervous pressure on the appendix, and we remove this pressure, proving the patients does not wait too long."

It was the consensus of opinion among the delegates that infantile paralysis can also be cured, providing it is taken in time. Many cases might be cured even in the acute stage, it was believed. Several instances where patients suffering with the disease have had power restored to paralyzed limbs by chiropractic were cited. Chiropractic is a method of adjusting the cause of disease without drugs or instruments, based on a correct knowledge of anatomy and especially of the nervous system, according to an announcement.

HEIR TO $1,000,000 FOUND

Japanese Prodigal Son Was Serving as Butler in Pittsburgh Family

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—Midway Itsumi, a butler in a wealthy Squirrel Hill home, learned today that he had fallen heir to $1,000,000 of his father's $15,000,000 Tokio estate. The prodigal had been sought in this country by T. Abanashi, a Tokio attorney, for the last five months. With the attorney, young Itsumi left for San Francisco. He will sail for Japan next week.

Itsumi, who is twenty-four years old, left his home in Tokio in 1909, in a fit of anger. Since then he has traveled all over the world. His father died last June.

The jury had been out nearly twenty-four hours. The report was current that the jury stood eleven to one for acquittal.

BANK THIEVES CAUGHT AT PIER IN NEW YORK

Men Wanted for Jewel Robbery Nabbed With Philadelphia Women

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Just a few hours before they were to board a steamship going to Cuba, two alleged English bank thieves, under indictment in Baltimore for a $20,000 jewel robbery, were arrested here today. The men are Leon Millar, twenty-four, and Jacob Keymer, thirty-two. With them were two women giving the names of Ray Bernstein, of 68 Forsyth street, and Annie Smith, 929 North Seventh street, Philadelphia. The women also were detained. The men will be held pending arrival of officers from Baltimore.

Detectives traced the pair through their trunks. The Baltimore authorities wired here asking that certain trunks leaving here be watched. When the trunks arrived here they were followed to their destination by a detective, who found the two men and two women there.

MERCURIES ON MOTORCYCLES

Bear Invitation for President to Attend Pittsburgh Festival

Messengers speeding across the State on motorcycles at the rate of forty-four miles an hour are carrying invitations to President Wilson and Mayor Smith to attend the 100th anniversary of the granting of the charter to the city of Pittsburgh.

These flying mercuries left the Smoky City at 7 o'clock this morning, and will endeavor to make the trip each way in nine hours. They are riding via the Lincoln Highway and hope to reach here some time this afternoon. They will pass through the city late today and continue to Shadow Lawn, where the invitation extended by Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, of Pittsburgh, will be given to the President.

ARMSTRONG FREE ON BAIL

Wife Relents and Judge Bonnell Allows Realty Man to Re-enter $1200 Security

William H. Armstrong, a real estate broker, convicted of infidelity on complaint of his wife, is free under bail today because his wife relented.

Armstrong, who appeared late yesterday before Judge Bonnell on the expiration of a $1200 bail bond, was released when Mrs. Armstrong pleaded with the Judge to be allowed to drop the charges. Judge Bonnell allowed Armstrong to re-enter the $1200 bail bond until next Monday, when a petition will be presented to have sentence suspended. Armstrong pleaded guilty a week ago to charges made by his wife, who it was said, surprised him and another woman in a downtown hotel.
